Tubing & Casing
Both Plain and Galvanized, for Oil and Salt Wells, American Charcoal Iron Boiler Tubes, Lap Welded Tubing for Steam and Water.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF
W. C. ALLISON'S
PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.
This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint, and the absence of a dead thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

PATENT STEEL JARS.
The undersigned hereby give notice to manufacturers, and parties making, selling or using Drilling Jars made of wrought iron or steel combined, that by virtue of certain assignments duly recorded at the United States Patent Office, we own the sole and absolute right, title and interest in three patents for Drilling Jars; one granted to James C. Eastman, in July, 1867, and two to Leward Guilford, in May, 1868; said patents covering all Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents and generally known as steel jars.

Griffin's Patent
WATER PACKER!

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or water packer in use yet. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or sand rag in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

From the Pittsburgh Commercial, May 5.

"O that mine enemy would write a book," cried critic Solomon, referring to some dignitary between whom and himself a coldness existed. How savagely he would have reviewed it may be inferred from the repressed intensity of the remark. The New York World is not Solomon, as anybody may know from looking into it, but it is a dignitary of very considerable eminence and influence. And although not a book it is a newspaper, which answers all the purposes of a library. Indeed, it is both book and library to a very wide circle of people whose limited abilities or opportunities have prevented them from getting beyond the primers of political instruction. While, therefore, it cannot be said that it adds anything to the general stock of human knowledge, it is not the less to be complimented and encouraged for the patient and assiduous way in which it performs its thankless drudgery of teaching obtuse yokels their letters. But the World keeps a diary, and is not always quite certain of its own mind, or, rather, we should say that while its opinions are quite positive and assured in one direction to-day, they are just as likely to be equally positive and assured in an opposite direction tomorrow. There can be no doubt of its sincerity; neither, unfortunately, can there be any question of its fickleness. It is very ardent, while the fit is on it, but its moods are more inconstant than the moon. Hence its diary is chameleon-hued, and presents the most curious jumble of conflicting ideas of which it is possible to conceive. A few days ago, in the course of an article accusatory of the Republican party, and laudatory of the men who administer the municipal affairs of New York, it said:

"Judas Iscariot was an apostle so long as the cause involved no personal peril, and secured him the bearing of a beg pletoric with contributions of the faithful."

This true and pertinent utterance has induced the Times of that city—which is cognizant of its peculiar liability to sudden changes of view—to look into the diary of which we have spoken, under the impression that its present doctrines clashed with the sentiments which it expressed twelve months since. And well have the revelations rewarded the search. It is the funniest thing in the world to read how the diary declares that to be white now which was black then, sweet of breath now which was fetid with foulness, that humane and tender now which was tyrannous and heartless then, compact of virtue now which was all built of vileness then—and so on through all the wide range of diverse comparison, until oppugnance becomes impossibility. The Times prints a column of extracts from the files of its contemporary, written exactly a year ago. In these extracts the entire journalistic batteries are brought to bear upon the men whom it now defends at the point of the sword. Grape, canister, shrapnel, round-shot and shell are poured upon them in such volleying wrath as never was witnessed upon battle-field since the first mankind learned to quarrel. To read them is like witnessing the discharge of a park of horrid mitrailleuse. "Treachery," "rascality," "dishonesty," "plundering," "corruption" "rapacity," "creatures," "tools," "despotism of thieves and robbers"—who would have thought that the artillerists of such a cannonade would have gone over to the very enemy at which they hurled these ferocious rhetorical combustibles, and have sworn that they were the noblest fellows in the vassal world? But so it is. Caliban has become Ariel. The witches have been transformed into fairies, and all is enchanted ground. Three hundred years ago Shakspeare said of something that it

"Soldered close impossibilities,
And made them kiss."

This something is in great use and demand in the world, and it is reported that the subjects of this marvelous metamorphosis have plenty of it.

From the Sandusky, Ohio, Register, May 6.

The New York Times goes for the New York World in a way slightly unpleasant to the Democratic organ. Of late the World has been the subservient tool of the Tammany Ring. It has practically sold itself to that corrupt faction. The Tammany Ring is ostensibly ambitious only to rule the city and county of New York. To do this it must keep possession of the State which it has temporarily gained through the aid of the Democratic party and the obedience to its behests of Gov. Hoffman. The Ring has, however, another object in view, and to accomplish it no means of corruption are left untried. Its prime object is the control of the Democratic party, the overthrow of the Republicans and the eventual management of the General Government. So long as it confined its efforts to the destruction of peace and order in New York, it was a matter of less moment to outsiders. Now that it has in numerous ways signified its determination to ruin the whole country, it becomes an object of interest to Americans everywhere. The Times has been unsparing in its exposure of Tammany corruption, and to that paper more than to any other are the people indebted for a true account of the character and plans of the organization run by Tweed, Sweeny & Co. April 5, 1870, the World said editorially that Mayor Hall was the servile tool of Tweed, the creature, ally and tool of the corrupt Ring. In its issue of April 4, 1870, the World said that Tweed and Sweeney had swindled the city out of thousands of dollars, and that the people had no rights which those men regarded. It called Tweed a traitor to the city, in its issue of March 28, 1870. The Times gives a full column of such extracts from the columns of the World before it was bought up to do Tweed's dirty work. Such is the character given by a Democratic journal of the men who to-day stand at the head of the Democracy of New York, and through them control the Democratic party. Tweed has already made his arrangements to have a hand in political affairs in the West, and it is reported that he has furnished means to several Democratic politicians and newspapers, to be used in putting forward certain candidates known to be useful to the Tammany Ring. A Democratic victory in a Western State this Fall will be a triumph of Tammany politicians, and advantage of it will be taken to place the nation under the political control of a set of men who have not only bled New York to the tune of millions of dollars annually, but have added $10,000,000 to the debt of the city within a year. Are the people ready to fall into the clutches of the rapacious horde who thrive by bribery and corruption?

The Public Monuments of Paris.

From the New York Evening Post, May 5.

The 5th of May, unless the armies of Versailles shall meanwhile effect an entrance into Paris, will be a memorable day in the history of France. By a decree of the Commune it is to be rendered forever infamous by the destruction of all the architectural monuments of the beautiful city. It was the boast of Augustus Cæsar, so often cited as to have become quite threadbare in the quotation, that he found Rome of brick and left it of marble; and it will be the boast of the Commune that they found Paris the fairest and richest metropolis of the world, and left it largely a city of ruins, a Tadmor or a Persepolis of modern civilization. If the Communists can aspire to no higher distinction, they can at least establish for themselves the infamy of being the Palladios of Ruin. What it has required centuries to construct, what architects and artists, whose fame is the common property of mankind, had laboriously endeavored to erect as "a lasting possession" and as enduring monuments not so much of individual glory as of French taste and genius, these madmen of the Commune purpose to lay low between the rising and the setting sun.

The column in the Place Vendome, it seems, is the special object of the iconoclastic rage of the new despotism. It is one of the loftiest objects in the city, seen far out upon the plain in the approach to Paris, or marked distinctly in the distant view from the heights of Sceaux or St. Germain-en-Laye, and it is associated with many of the most stirring scenes of modern European history as well as with the most brilliant spectacles of the Parisian holiday. It was an affecting anecdote of the ill-starred Duc de Reichstadt, the unhappy boy of the First Napoleon, that writing from his exile in Vienna to a friend in Paris, he said, "Salute for me the column in the Place Vendome." It was around its base that the victorious eagles of the Crimea and the Italian war, victorious for the last time in the campaign of Italy, moved in their triumphal entry into their capital. Made of the cannon taken by the Little Corporal, it was so graceful and imposing an object, and crowned so harmoniously the vista down the Rue de la Paix, that it was spared in 1815 by the allied armies, whose wise leaders would not even indulge the vengeful Blucher in his desire to destroy the Bridge of Jena. But the column must go down before the fury of the Communists as a souvenir of monarchical rule.

The decree which embraces in a common destruction "all the monarchial monuments of Paris" is so sweeping and so vague that it is difficult for the foreigner to conjecture what architectural glories of modern Paris will be spared. The lovely Arch of the Star—

Republican Primary Meetings.

In pursuance of a resolution of the County Committee, the primary meetings will be held on Friday, June 23, from 7 until 7 p. m. The Judge for one of the Clerks appointed by the Judge of each district, will meet at the Court House in Meadville, on the day following the primary meetings, at 10 o'clock, p. m., having certified returns and list of voters, and the persons having the highest number of votes for any office, shall be declared the regular nominee of the Republican party. The Committee, at their meeting February 15th, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Republican voters of Crawford county be requested to vote at the next primary meetings directly upon the question of the repeal of the present system of making nominations, the ballots to be labelled respectively "For Repeal" and "Against Repeal."

J. G. FOSTER,
Chairman County Committee.

A Question of Veracity.

M. M Pomeroy writes us from New York, under date of May 8th, that B. F. Butler has never been written to or asked to interfere in any way as we (the HERALD) state. "For the truth of this," he says, "I refer you to the lady in question." We give Mr. Pomeroy the benefit of his contradiction, supported by the following from the La Crosse Daily Republican of the 4th inst.:

A telegram in the La Crosse Leader, May 3d, says:

"Gen Butler has been retained as counsel by the wife of Brick Pomeroy for preventing her divorce from her husband."

That is all bosh.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, May 3d, says:

CIRCUIT COURT—JUDGE SMALL.

"This morning the divorce case of Anna M Pomeroy vs. Mark M. Pomeroy came up, testimony having previously been taken. Butler & Winkler for plaintiff; Cameron & Losey for defendant. Decree of divorce granted, and $20,000 alimony adjudged, in lieu of dower and all other rights the plaintiff may have by virtue of marrying with the defendant. The plaintiff is also adjudged the custody of one daughter, Mary A. Pomeroy."

This proceeding, we understand, was mutually desired, to legalize an amicable negotiation about a separation that has practically existed for many years; and the alimony is about equivalent to the voluntary annuity that has hitherto been granted, notwithstanding the disparaging rumors of neglect that have often been circulated by those whose ignorance of the facts was only equalled by their mischievious malignity toward a man whose sins are not akin to hypocrisy. Circumstances of peculiar delicacy have compelled Mr. Pomeroy to submit silently to imputations of dishonor; and, with this final action, it is to be hoped, all vituperation will cease.

Here is plain question of veracity between Gen Butler and Mr. Pomeroy. The General says in his letter, which we have already published, that Mrs. Pomeroy applied to him "in a very lady-like and proper note," and Mr. Pomeroy's local counsel confirms the story, and in the above extract we find Butler's name on the record of the Circuit Court, in this identical suit. Meanwhile the lady herself is as dumb as an oyster and has not yet thrown the weight of her testimony in either scale. "Mark" tells us to inquire of Butler who tells the truth, but we must be excused, as we have matters of much more importance to ourselves and the public to attend to. We look upon the whole thing as an advertising dodge of Pomeroy's Democrat, which in addition to the one contained a most vulgar and scurrilly charge against General Butler, which we judge from all intrinsic and extrinsic evidence to be a poor coinage of falsehood and malignity. Until Mrs. Pomeroy shall publish her own affidavit, denying that she addressed a note to Gen Butler asking him to plead her cause, the public will take the General's word as true. Should she deny it, it might only show that Butler was imposed upon by a person assuming her name, without her warrant. And her counsel's statement and the Court record, which corroborate Butler, still remain to be explained away and accounted for, on any other hypothesis.

A Word for Railroads.

The Financial Chronicle, in the course of an article on the internal progress of this country, observes that what is certain is that the new railroads which we have built since the war have given a new value to the millions of acres of real estate through which they pass, that these roads have created and called into existence a multitude of new and magnificent streams of interior trade which without them would not have been now fertilizing our country and enriching our people.

The vast capital we have sunk in those railroads and other works of labor-saving and wealth-creating efficiency is equivalent to the unpaid service of a larger army than Xerxes led against ancient Greece or Napoleon against modern Russia. The annual product of all these agencies for enriching the country is inconceivably great, and though as we have said much of this yearly product of new wealth is latent, and may demand years, and perhaps ages for its highest development and fullest maturity, still every year it will more and more be realized and made available for the immediate prosperity and personal gain of all orders of our industrial population, both of those who organize labor and capital, and of the larger masses who serve under their leadership. This harvesting of the returns from our great national investments in railroads and other productive works has begun and will continue. And in any case it cannot but increase year by year.

MORE OUTRAGES IN SOUTH CAROLINA.—Dispatches from South Carolina report a number of outrages in that State during the last week, mainly in Fairfield, Clarendon, and Newberry counties. The School Commissioner of Clarendon county was killed, and the house of State Senator Barber, of Fairfield county, was visited, but he had flown. Several Fairfield county office-holders have tendered their resignations to Governor Scott, alleging that their lives are in danger while in office. In Florence several negroes have been shot down in broad daylight, in presence of the civil authorities, who did not dare to arrest the guilty persons. Numerous cases of whipping and housebreaking are reported.

The venerable Jacob Barker, once so well known as the Quaker merchant in New York, and subsequently as a banker in New Orleans, is now spending his declining years in Philadelphia. He resides in Spruce street with his son Abram Jacob Barker is now in his 93d year, having been born in 1778, on Swan Island, at the mouth of the Kennebec river, in the State of Maine.

Formerly life, the late Hon. James M. Mason of Virginia, married a member of the historical Crow family, of Germantown, Pennsylvania, and for many years was involved in bitter litigation with other branches of the family concerning the settlement of the Chew estate. Mr. Mason was a lineal descendant of the English George Mason, who escaped from the fatal field of Worcester in 1651, and came to America, first settling a plantation in Virginia.

Prince Von Pringe who is visiting the Prince of Wales, married a bride at Columbus, Ohio, and described by the State Journal: "Standing upon the stand at the German picnic celebration, Prince Von Pringe is a tall fellow, six feet, we should say, slender, rather graceful-looking young gentleman, of dark complexion, with hair and eyes to correspond. Hair cropped short, face clean shaved, except heavy moustache. He was simply and elegantly dressed, and had a quiet, self-possessed manner, with more of vivacity than most Germans, gesticulating freely."

PARIS, May 10.

Commune asserts that the garrison of Issy has certainly escaped capture. General Rassell closes his communication to the Commune, complaining that he had not received proper support, in the following words: Two courses were open to our forces, viz: To break through the obstacles which environ Paris, or retire. The former has been found to be impossible, therefore we have retired. He says. I cannot endure to hold responsibility where everybody deliberates, where nobody obeys orders, where nothing is organized, and where guns depend for service upon a few volunteers. In continuation the General complains that reinforcements have not been granted when urgently needed, and, in point of fact, Commune was incapable to discharge the duties pertaining to it. He therefore retires from its services, and demands a cell in the Maseas prison.

PARIS, May 10.

At a secret meeting of the Commune, on Tuesday, it was decided to insist on the resignation of the Committee of Public Safety, and the appointment of their successors to be made immediately. Commune decided to meet on three days of each week, except in case of emergency, when the sittings will be held permanently. The sessions are to be held in the Hotel De Ville. M. Delahuze announced that Gen. Rassell adheres to his resignation, and appealed to Commune to forego all animosities. The meeting was characterized with recriminations between members of the Central Committee and those of the Committee of Public Safety.

All troops are forbidden to cease firing on Versaillists who may attempt to surrender, while fugitives and stragglers are to be sabred when caught, or if they are in numerous bodies they are to be fired into.

Jewell Governor of Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Ct., May 10.

The Legislature convened at 2 o'clock this afternoon. In the House the Committee on Canvass of Votes reported Marshall Jewell elected Governor by eighty-six majority, and also declared the election of other Republican officers. A resolution declaring Jewell elected is now being debated.

Riot and Bloodshed.

SCRANTON, May 10.

The bodies of three murdered laborers were found this morning in a swamp near Bugg's Shaft. During the riot yesterday, when the laborers were routed, they fled into this swamp, followed by the infuriated miners, where the three men were beaten and kicked to death. The Irish miners and laborers held a meeting last night and passed the following resolutions:

Whereas, We, the Irish citizens in employ of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co., have been maltreated in an attempt to follow our lawful pursuits; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the cowardly and dastardly assault of to-day is nothing short of premeditated assassination of Irishmen.

Resolved, That we condemn the action of the Mayor in not sending aid to us, after due notice being given him by the committee who were sent to appease him of the effusion of human blood.

Resolved, That we Irishmen, laborers and miners throughout this district, disperse and stand aloof from having any connection or respect for the Union and fraternity with Welshmen in future.

Resolved, That we Irish miners do pledge ourselves to go in heart and hand with other laborers in their movement.

Resolved, That we get our names enrolled and resume work with them as soon as the company can get prepared for work.

Resolved, That all in future band ourselves together and be prepared for any further assault.

Resolved, That we call on all good citizens, Americans, Germans, Scotch and others, to join with us in our present endeavor to protect ourselves, homes, families, industry and labor, and that we all participate in friendly greetings and try to eke out a sustenance irrespective of these associations of the day.

It was heartrending to hear the recital of several members who only escaped with their lives, which was corroborated by forty men. Martin Donnel, who was taken home in a wagon, and who was then in a dying condition, says: I made my way to a clump of trees; I was followed and overtaken by seven men, who called out, "You Irish son of a b—h;" seven men struck me with billies and left me insensible; one brute afterward came back and raised me up and asked could I walk; I tried to get on my knees, and as soon as he saw I could walk he kicked me in the mouth and then I knew not what became of me until I found myself at home, surrounded by my friends.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE—EXTRA SESSION.

WASHINGTON, May 10

Half an hour before noon the floor of the Senate Chamber was well filled with Senators and others, and the meeting of personal friends and old associates was marked with great cordiality. There was a fair attendance in the galleries. The general topic of conversation was the probable duration of the session. Ten days or two weeks seemed the period almost universally fixed for its continuance.

The Senate opened with prayer at noon, by Dr. Newman, Chaplain, in the course of which he said: "Our Heavenly Father, may it please Thee that all national envy and jealousy shall cease, that swords may be turned into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks, when peace on earth and good will to men shall be the universal prayer of all the human race of the United States and Great Britain. We invoke Thy divine wisdom that peace shall by no satanic influence be disturbed by errors of statesmanship. May the peaceful relations of these two powers not be interrupted for a moment, and may all the people be united in a good example for the peaceful settlement of the great questions now pending." In conclusion the Chaplain invoked the divine blessing on the President and Vice President and Senate.

The proclamation convoking this extraordinary session was read, when on motion of Anthony it was resolved that a committee of two be appointed to wait on the President and inform him that a quorum of the Senate had assembled and was now ready to receive any communication he might be pleased to make.

Anthony and Casserly were appointed said committee.

It was ordered that the daily hour of meeting be 12 o'clock.

On motion of Hamilton, it was resolved that the standing committees of the Senate be, and they are hereby, reappointed, and that during the present session the Vice President will fill any vacancy which may exist.

The Senate then took a recess till one o'clock.

On the reassembling of the Senate, Anthony, from the committee appointed to wait on the President, reported they had performed that duty, and that the President had informed them he would immediately send to the Senate a communication in writing.

Cameron offered a resolution that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be until Friday next.

Sumner—Why not make it a later day?

The resolution was adopted.

On motion of Merrill, of Vermont, it was resolved that the President be requested to furnish the Senate with a copy of all reports made by Hon. William Whiting, Solicitor of the War Department, upon any claims made by subjects of any foreign nation for damages in consequence of war against rebellious States from 1861 to 1865 inclusive, and which are supposed to be on file in the State Department.

General Porter then appeared, announcing he had been directed by the President to deliver to the Senate a message in writing.

A treaty was then handed to the Vice President, and immediately Cameron moved the Senate go into executive session, which was agreed to.

The Senate at 3:15 adjourned.

WASHINGTON, May 10.

Subscriptions to the new loan to-day were $40,000.

The Fifth Maryland Regiment arrived here this evening, and gave a marching salute to the President as they passed the Executive Mansion. They visited Mount Vernon this afternoon.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate, to-day: Joseph Belknap, Supervising Inspector General of steamboats; Max Woodbull, Assistant Secretary of Legation at London; M. M. Francis, of New York, to be Minister Resident of Greece; Consuls, J. M. Lucus, St. Johns, Canada; A. G. Fuertis, Cornund, Spain; C. B. Dalgreen, San Dimes, Mexico; Joseph R. Lewis, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico.

Among the visitors on the floor of the Senate, to-day, were ex-Senators Harris, of New York, and Reverdy Johnson.

Corcoran is no better to-day.

The treaty agreed upon by the United States and Great Britain, by the Joint High Commissioners, has been referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, of the Senate. The prospects are favorable for ratification.

The weather is unchanged, with a high barometer and brisk westerly winds on the Pacific coast. The high barometer which prevailed on Tuesday in the Northwest has spread Southeast into Pennsylvania and Kentucky. The low pressure then prevailing in Tennessee is now in Southern Alabama. The barometer remains stationary over the Eastern and lower lakes. The temperature has risen on the lakes and in the Northwest. Fresh and light winds from the Northeast and Northwest have prevailed on the lakes and Atlantic coast. Brisk Northerly winds have been reported in the lower Mississippi Valley and Gulf. The rain of Tuesday night, after extending along the Atlantic, is now abated and confined to points in Tennessee and the Gulf States. Partially cloudy and clear weather is probable for the lakes and Gulf on Thursday, and cloudy followed by clearing-up weather on the South Atlantic. No material change is apprehended for the Middle and Eastern States.

The Territorial Legislature of the District of Columbia, will meet for the first time Monday. It is said Fred. Douglass, who has been nominated and confirmed as a member of the upper branch, is not eligible, as he is a citizen of New York, and did not register or vote here.

The President this morning signed the treaty of friendship and commerce, just negotiated between the United States and Salvador.

The Senate went into executive session a few minutes after one o'clock to-day. The first thing done was the reading of the treaty of the Joint High Commission, which occupied about one hour. Cameron, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, made a brief statement to the effect that the treaty was honorable to both countries, negotiated in the interest of peace, and hoped that the treaty would receive the approval of the Senate. He suggested that it be given to the press of the country, but to this several Senators interposed objections, as they could see no reason for departing from the uniform practice of the Senate. Sumner is reported as saying he did not approve some portions of the treaty, and thought they should be amended. He, like Cameron, said the public should be furnished with a full text of the treaty in order that they might fully understand its provisions in advance of final action of the Senate. He was of the opinion that the claims of British subjects should not have been incorporated in the treaty, as they grew out of things done on the part of Great Britain itself during the late war, and they would not have been admitted if decided opposition had been expressed by our own Commissioners. The simple, better plan would have been to make out a fair bill for the Alabama and kindred depredations, but he would not now ask its payment in the way of exemplary or vindictive damages. Other matters might afterward be adjusted. He did not, however, indicate whether he would vote for or against the treaty, as he had not had time to examine all its features, some of which were of an important national character.

New York News.

NEW YORK, May 10.

At an early hour this morning Samuel Perris, alias Worcester Sam, leader of a gang of Eastern bank robbers and forgers, was captured, after several months' chase, at a house in Hoboken, by Detectives Squires and Woods, of the United States Detective Service, assisted by local officers. Perris is under indictment for bank robberies in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont; also counterfeiting. The detectives followed him to England, whence he fled, after escaping by jumping from a train of cars at full speed. The detectives got on his track again and yesterday hunted him down to a house in Hoboken, where his wife has been living for a month. Perris was known to be desperate, and declared he would not be taken alive. The police surrounded the house all night and surprised him in bed at daybreak. He was very violent on the way to the New Haven train.

The notorious forger George Hall was arrested at the Erie depot, Jersey City, last night, for forging $50,000 Rochester city bonds, which had been disposed of to New York dealers. Hall is the same person concerned in the forgery of $27,000 on Jay Cooke, about two years ago.

The Universal Peace Union celebrated their fifth anniversary to-day at Cooper Institute. Resolutions were passed condemning the system of standing armies and military schools, declaring all international differences ought to be adjusted by love and justice.

A protest will be brought under consideration by the Ship Owners' Association against the American Consul at Liverpool for, as alleged, not providing the crew of the wrecked schooner Lucy Gibson, of Dennis, Mass., with sufficient clothing and food. The men were landed at Liverpool almost naked and penniless.

Michael has been convicted of manslaughter in the third degree for stabbing to death Patrick Walsh, on the 17th of March, and sentenced to four years in the State Prison. Judge Bedford, in passing sentence, expressed the hope that the Legislature would alter the ridiculous law which prescribed so light a punishment for the offence, remarking that if deceased had lived and the prisoner been prosecuted for felonious assault, he might have been sent to prison for ten years.

A reduction in passenger fares to the west has been inaugurated by the Erie Railway Company, and another general reduction by all competing lines is probable before summer travel begins. The price of tickets to St. Paul, Minnesota, is reduced $2 50 by the Erie agents. New York Central, Pennsylvania Central and Erie freight agents, are cutting rates of transportation of goods and first class freight, and a new tariff sheet will be adopted about the middle of May. At the same time new time tables for the summer, which have been several months in preparation, will also take effect.

The Union Dime Savings Banks, of this city, has subscribed $100,000 for the new loan.

Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 10.

The City Attorney and City Marshall of Jacksonville, Ill., passed through here this morning with two prisoners named John Lemons, alias Belden, and Stephen McFeety, supposed to have been instrumental in the murder of Sharon Tyndale, at Springfield. They were arrested, one near Bradford, Stark county, and the other at Princeton. The evidence is said to be strong against them

One of those who were present at the meeting on Monday on the subject of the controversy between Bishop Whitehouse and Mr. Cheney, writes to correct an account that has been published. He says that what actually transpired was as follows: The meeting was convened by the Bishop for the purpose of mutual conference, not between the Bishop and Cheney (the latter was not present at the forenoon meeting and it could not properly be owing to his being under ecclesiastical censure), but between the Bishop and standing committee on one side, and on the other the wardens and vestry of Christ Church, as Cheney's advisory council, in order to rectify the possible mutual misunderstanding and thereby, if in any way possible, arrive at such concessions on the part of the rector of Christ Church as would, to use the Bishop's own language, put it in his power, for otherwise he was powerless to exercise the limited discretionary right with which the law invested him in the administration of ecclesiastical discipline. Owing, however, to the urgently expressed desire of the vestry for Cheney's presence, without which they claim they could do nothing, but which, according to the Bishop, could not be admitted at a meeting like this of formal and official character, the meeting adjourned, the Bishop first making the suggestion that another meeting of a less formal nature might be appointed for the afternoon at which Cheney should be invited to be present and the whole question freely and fully discussed. This suggestion was adopted. The second meeting convened at 3 o'clock p. m. and remained in session till nearly 6 p. m. The Bishop was not present. Cheny, however, complied with the request for his attendance, and stated his views very fully and frankly. He enumerated the names of several prominent clergymen who sympathized with him, and affirmed his determination to adhere to his present position in language so unqualified as to leave no hope of concession from that quarter. The Bishop did not, as was stated, propose to suspend the pronunciation of Cheny's sentence until the meeting of the next General Convention, and forever thereafter if that Convention shall decide that Cheny had been following the doctrine of the Episcopal Church in omitting to use the word "regenerate" in the office of infant baptism, Mr. Cheny to consent to its use meantime. Such a proposition was not even most remotely hinted at in the Bishop's presence. A proposal somewhat resembling this was mooted at in the afternoon meeting, but the hopelessness of any such solution of the difficulty, even in assuming that the law would allow the Bishop to accept such a solution, was shown by the utter refusal of Cheny to use the obnoxious term under any circumstances, and the refusal of his vestry to recommend him to suspend the exercise of his clerical functions until the assembling of the Convention or make any other concession which would enable the Bishop, consistently with the terms of the canon, to avert the infliction of the final penalty. It was, indeed, proposed that Cheny should omit the baptismal service altogether during that interval, but meanwhile the vestry claimed for him that he should be at liberty to continue the exercise of all his other functions in direct contempt of the sentence of suspension already pronounced. The above statement was undoubtedly written by one of the standing committee of the diocese.

Grand Army of the Republic.

BOSTON, May 10.

The national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic assembled in John A. Andrew's Hall at noon. Gen. Logan in the chair. One hundred and fifty delegates were present, from nearly every northern State. Among the delegates were Gens. Owen, Fairchild, Robertson, White, Barnard, Stannard, Chipman, Kilpatrick, Barnes, Underwood, Bates and Sprague. Prayer was offered by the chaplain. The proceedings were with closed doors.

Gen. Logan in his address said: The Grand Army of the Republic is not a political organization. We have but three objects which are obligatory upon us as members of the order, fraternity among members, chastity, and loyalty to the government. The General advocated the abolition of secret sessions, and hoped the influence of the order would be felt at the next session of Congress to secure homesteads for soldiers. He concluded by positively declining reelection.

At the afternoon session it was decided to postpone the annual election until Thursday.

A telegraphic dispatch was received from the National Peace League, now in session in New York, congratulating the Peace Encampment of the Grand Encampment of the Grand Army of veterans on the era of relief from strife, and asking them to use their influence to prevent occasion for any further war encampments. The following was voted in reply —"Your congratulations are reciprocal. The Grand Army of the Republic are determined to have peace, even if they must fight for it."

Delegates for England.

A letter from St. Johns, N. F., says: Two delegates have left Newfoundland for England, to negotiate with Granville for the restoration of the military forces which were withdrawn from the colony on refusal to accept terms of confederation with Canada. The delegates are F. Bennett, Premier of the government, and Hon. Talbott, of the Executive Council.

The Mace-Coburn Mill.

ERIE, PA., May 10.

From one to two thousand strangers are now in the city, consisting of delegations of the sporting fraternity from New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and the principal cities, waiting to take steamers to convey them to the battle ground to witness the fight between Mace and Coburn to-morrow. Boats leave between one and two in the morning for some point on the Canada shore, but the exact locality is not known. The crowd is very orderly, and it is expected it will be a fair fight.

Found Murdered.

NORTH PLATTE, NEB., May 10.

Miss Kate Manning was found murdered near this place yesterday, having been shot twice, taking effect in the head and breast, and several outs about the head. The supposed murderers are now in custody.

Homœopathic Medical Society.

CINCINNATI, May 10.

The State Homœopathic Medical Society heard reports and papers from Dr. S. E. Adams, of Springfield, on electricity in the management of disease, Dr. Z. Disbro on apis mellifica, Dr. H. H. Baxter on materia medica as related to clinical medicine, Dr. Ring, general subject, on materia medica, and Dr. Owens on the treatment of several special cases. Considerable discussion arose on Dr. Finck's high pontencies. Drs. Wilson and Breckwith protested against their use, because they were patent medicines. Dr. Owens, Brifogle and Oblman defended the preparations. Papers were also read by Dr. Flowers in post mortem hemorrhages, Dr. Schneider on exclusion of air from wounds, Dr. Lukens on surgery, and by Dr. Breckwith on hernia. The society voted to invite the American Institute of Homœopathy to hold their summer meeting in Cleveland. An amendment to the constitution to provide for the expulsion of members who send prescriptions to allopathic druggists to be compounded, elicited lively discussion, and was finally laid over till next meeting. The meeting then adjourned to meet the first Tuesday of May, at Toledo.

Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.

A contest came off this morning between two compositors for the prizes offered by the proprietors of the Printers' Circular, for swift type-setting. George Arensberg set 1,877 ems, and Richard McLean 1,827 ems in an hour. Competition extends to compositors in other cities of the States and Canadas, and takes places to-day. The principal prize is a six-inch silver composing stick.

The Diocesan Episcopal Convention is in session here to-day, Rev. Dr. Howe presiding in the absence of Bishop Stevens, from illness. The meeting opened with religious services. The Bishop expects to be recovered sufficiently to read the annual charge at noon to-morrow.

A dispatch from Pottsville says: At a meeting of miners held this evening arbitration decided upon every thing which has been arranged, and an immediate resumption will take place.

Wm. Hamilton, actuary of Franklin Institute, died this morning, aged 81. He has been connected with the Institute 40 years.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD,
TITUSVILLE, May 10, 1871—9 P. M.

The market opened firm, with considerable inquiry upon both sections of the road. Sellers, however, were asking extreme prices and buyers were forced to pay high prices for oil purchased. The latter part of the day prices appreciated, and at the close $4.20 and $4.22½ was bid for spot, and $4.25 for "regular" upon the Upper Road, with sellers generally asking from five to ten cents above these figures. Upon the Lower Creek from $4.35 to $4.40 was the ruling offer, with sellers at $4.45 and $4.50. Market closed firm.

Money and Stock Market.

NEW YORK, May 10.

Gold dull but steady, at 111¼@111¾.
Loans were made at from 1 to 6 per cent.
Clearances, $20,000,000.
Exports to-day, $250,553.
Government bonds opened steady, but in the afternoon declined from ⅛ to ¼ per cent. The Government bought 2,000,000 at an average of 111-17, or a trifle under par in gold. The decline in bonds was owing to the rumor that Secretary Boutwell telegraphed to the Assistant Treasurer here to accept $2,000,000 in bonds, providing that amount was offered at par in gold, or under.

The stock market has been dull all day, partly in consequence of the interruption to business from a change of quarters to open the Board until the repairs to the old room are completed. Cliques are buying stocks as the "bears" offer them down. The Post says the prevailing opinion among those most competent to judge is, that the present lull will be followed by another upward movement, during the cliques hope to fully unload. The failure in the market has been the Erie, New York Central, Reading, Rock Island, Ohio, Union Pacific and Pacific Mail. Express stocks are lower on the United states and American. It is said to-day that the Courts will take the Erie Bond from Gould, Fisk & Co.

Erie and Crawford Senatorial Delegate.

Pursuant to notice the conferees appointed by Erie and Crawford counties respectively to elect a delegate to represent the Twenty-ninth Senatorial District in the Republican State Convention to be held at Harrisburg on May 17th, instant, met at Union Mills, Erie county, on Tuesday, May 9th.

Present—Messrs. James Sill, Thomas Woods, Wm. Warden, of Erie, and Messrs. E. O. David, Albert Erwin and W. W. Bloss, of Crawford.

On motion of Mr. Bloss the meeting was organized by appointing Mr. Sill chairman.

On motion of Mr. Woods, Mr. Bloss was chosen Secretary.

By request, Mr. Woods was excused from attendance, and Mr. M. B. Chamberlain was elected to fill the vacancy.

Mr. George K. Anderson was presented as the candidate of Crawford county, and the following named gentlemen were successively presented by the Erie delegates: George Colton, John H. Walker, Colonel Curtis, M. B. Lowry, Captain Dunlap.

A number of ballots were taken without effecting a choice, when Mr. Chamberlain, on behalf of the Erie delegates, nominated Mr. Anderson, and he was thereupon unanimously elected.

Mr. Bloss then offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted, and the meeting then adjourned:

Resolved, That in Gen. D. B. McCreary, the candidate presented by Erie county for the nomination of Auditor General by the Republican State Convention, we recognize a patriot soldier who has proved his valor in the field, a legislator who has done the State some service, and a gentleman who is eminently fitted to adorn the position for which he is named.

Varieties.

Quite a delegation of colored people went to Meadville yesterday to jubilate.

—The Allegheny River is high enough for rafting but the water is receding.

—The Lake Shore Nitro-Glycerine Co., of Painesville, Ohio, are the inventors of a process for rendering nitro-glycerine non-explosive by the simple admixture of common salt. The salt is at once removed by solution in water.

—The ordinary glycerine of commerce has lately been discovered to effect rapid and wonderful cures in hopeless cases of consumption. Two table-spoonfuls are said to be equivalent in nutritive properties, to one pound of beefsteak. It is perfectly harmless, and may be taken in large quantities with impunity.

—Mr. Samuel Thompson, chemist, has lately determined by experiment that when hydrogen gas is used instead of air for vaporizing the more volatile hydro-carbons, the combination is simply mechanical and not chemical; consequently, no new hydro-carbons are formed. As a matter of course, the hydro-carbon vapors condense at low temperatures, like any ordinary air-gas.

—The Casement gas well in Painesville, Ohio, has given the gas company in that place sufficient encouragement to put down several wells for the purpose of supplying the city with gas. Various manufacturers will also sink wells for the sake of economizing fuel.

—The severe frost of Tuesday night was very destructive of vegetation and fruit blossoms throughout this section. The farmers report a general and severe devastation.

—The citizens of Spartansburgh have contracted the oil fever, and are about sinking a test well. The theory is that the Church Run belt extends to that locality.

—A brakesman named C. M. Rouse was killed at Jamestown, on the Erie and Pittsburgh Railroad, on Monday. He fell from the top of a car, and the entire train passed over his body.

—Messrs. R. H. Frisbee and T. B. Shreves have broken ground for the erection of an opera house at Union Mills The building will be 60 by 80 feet, three stories in height, and will cost $10,000.

—The torpedo controversy is ended, and the decision of Judge Strong of the Supreme bench will be rendered in the U. S. District Court at Pittsburgh to-morrow. It is confidently predicted that it will be against the Roberts monopoly, and that the whole business of manufacturing torpedoes will thus be thrown open to the general public.

—Representative Gray writes that as the Legislature will not adjourn before the 16th inst., he will be unable to give much attention to the preliminary canvass He is announced as a candidate for renomination.

—Oil City is growing with great rapidity, and her enthusiastic citizens predict that it will require but two years to overtake Titusville. A stern chase is a long one.

—The case of Joshua Weaver, of Cranberry township, Venango county, is another illustration of Fortune's freaks in the oil region. The sheriff was on the point of selling him out, "body and breeches," when a hundred barrel oil well was struck near his farm. Joshua is all right now.

—The Council have sent a draft of a bill to Harrisburg, prohibiting non-resident merchants and traveling agents from vending goods in Titusville.

—Mr. C. H. Robinson, agent of the American Express Company, sent to our sanctum last evening a number of Delaware River shad, which we may suppose were taken by him during a recent "trouting" excursion to Philadelphia. They were of huge proportion, delicate flavor and very acceptable to the editorial larder, for we have no time to go fishing on our own "hook."

—Lingard's impersonations are the best hit of the season. His transformations of character are almost instantaneous, and he appears successively as Horace Greeley, Gov. Hoffman, Ben Butler, and other distinguished individuals. So accurately are they portrayed that everybody identifies the likeness. He will give these to-night at the Opera House. The programme is very attractive.

—The monthly petroleum report of the Producers' Association rates the average daily production for April at 12,866 barrels.

Venango County Republican Primary Election.

The Republicans of Venango county held their primary election on Saturday, the 6th inst. There was no contest on any of the nominations except those of members of Assembly and County Treasurer. For these two offices good men were nominated. Mr. J. D. McJunkin, the present incumbent, and who is now on his second term, from his course in the last two Legislatures, has secured the confidence of his constituents in a large degree, and well deserves this renewed endorsement. His competitor was Mr. S. B. Myers, the present efficient District Attorney. Mr. M made a good run, and has reason to be well satisfied with his vote.

For County Treasurer, Oil City and Franklin each presented a candidate, Mr. Fid Bishop standing for the former, while Mr. N. B. Riddle represented the county seat. The county will be served faithfully by Mr. Riddle, which could have been said of Mr. B., had he been the successful man. We give only the vote on these two offices by districts, as there was no contest on any of the other offices.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Since Mr. W. P Lucas became manager of the Western Union Telegraph office, at this point two years ago, the business has been increased from one hundred and twenty messages per day, with two operators, and two messengers, to upwards of four hundred messages per day, with four operators, and four messengers. This does not include the Associated Press telegrams and oil reports. The office has now in working order ten wires, and has lately received and set up an Otaway switch, with Henning's improvement, which cost three hundred dollars to manufacture. They yesterday completed the construction of a new line, for the New York Pipe Line Co., which extends from Garland to this city, and connects with their batteries. This line will be run conjointly by the two companies. Another branch office will be opened next Monday, at the Oil Exchange in the Parshall Block, and before long an office will be established on Church Run. One wire works direct with the Oil Boards of Trade in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and New York. The rates have lately been reduced to a great many points, where lines have been leased out, and consolidations effected with railroad lines. And this branch at least of the Company's lines is in a high state of efficiency.

THE LINGARD TROUPE.—To-night this excellent company appear for the first time in this city, at the Parshall Opera House, commencing an engagement of three nights. The simple announcement of their arrival ought to be sufficient to pack the house, for there are few artists in the profession better known than William Horace Lingard and his charming wife, known as Alice Dunning. Lingard's songs and character impersonations have tickled the New Yorkers and all the visitors to the metropolis for years, and the ballads and serio-comic character songs, of which he is the original impersonator, have been sung nightly from one end of the Union to the other. As the first and only "Captain Jinks," Lingard won a world-renowned reputation, and will appear to-night in this and several other specialties, in which he is unapproachable.

The Beginning—Its When and Its How.

This valuable work, just published by Longmans, Green & Co., of London, England, is the latest of Mungo Ponton's contributions to the scientific literature of the day. From early life the author has been a member of the Royal Society of Arts, Edinburgh, and has devoted about forty years to scientific investigation and pursuits. He has attained a high degree of celebrity in his own country, both as an author and scientific discoverer, and this, his latest production, has been looked forward to, with no inconsiderable degree of interest by many of the most powerful thinkers of the period. The work is a direct attack upon the well-known theory set forth by Charles Darwin, in his "Origin of Species," which has now been before the world for upwards of ten years; and also upon that of Professor Huxley, in his "Physical Basis of Life," which is of later date. The idea that our forefathers were at one time gorillas roaming about the wilds of the primitive globe, and that they in their turn were derived from a common origin, namely, a minute atom of living matter, or a vegetable cell, which continued to expand into the different species and classes of the vegetable and animal kingdoms, by what is termed natural selection, and improvement or advancement, is certainly very revolting to unphilosophical people; but this is the Darwin theory, and it has many followers of more or less note in the scientific world, who quietly consider themselves a modification of the ape. Professor Huxley goes still further. He labors to prove that life, like gravitation or magnetism, is a simple property of matter, and that not merely were we all derived from a substance which he terms protoplasm, a material which considerably resembles albumen, but he also reduces our thinking, our intellectual, and our moral faculties, to nothing more nor less than groups of phenomena, and aggregations of minute masses of this stuff, which becomes assimilated into our system, by some cause which is not explained, but which we are led to suppose is by chance. These two theories obviate the necessity for assuming the existence of a Creator or a prime non-material organizer, to impart the property of life, and also to establish the thinking principle, which distinguishes man from the lower order of animals.

Generally speaking, none but those who possess a special knowledge of physiology and of the natural sciences, can form a correct opinion of the truth or falsity of the theories advanced upon such subjects; but Mungo Ponton has a luminous and powerful faculty of giving the reader a most perfect insight into the true signification of scientific terms. As he advances step by step with rigorous logical force and exactness, to the solution of problems of the most transcendant importance, he leaves not the slightest doubt as to his precise meaning, or the correctness of his deductions. His work is altogether free from that pomposity of statement without proof, and that dictation of inflated ideas without argument, which is so characteristic of most treatises on the logical affinities of mind and matter, and which puzzles even the most learned and attentive reader.

It would be impossible in this article, to give any idea either of the style of the author, or of the long train of scientific facts and investigation, which he brings to bear upon his subject. He commences with the primary formation of the ether, which is known to exist everywhere, and to permeate all space, and proves that this must have existed before ponderable matter, and to prepare the way for its reception. The atoms of this ether have a powerful repellent force to each other. When ponderable matter was created each atom had an attractive force to the other, and thus the counterbalance was effected. As light is a tremor or vibratory motion of this ether, so is heat a tremor of the more ponderous atoms of which the planetary system is composed. The author then goes on to show how this system was established, and how the property of magnetism and electricity was imparted. He enters into the causes of the light and heat from the sun, and the different solar systems.

When he comes down to this earth he combats Darwin and Huxley, step by step, commencing with the primeval creation, going into the different organisms, and proving the impossibility of the organic derivation theory. He illustrates his work with very fine engravings of microscopical organisms, and shows the basis of life to be non material. He also explains specific creation and gradual formation In the latter part of his work he gives a most lucid explanation of the written record of the creation, and the manner in which it corresponds with the latest scientific discoveries. He shows that the Hebrew testament contains nothing whatever to indicate the idea of instantaneous creation, and further throws much light on its authenticity.

The work will be read with deep interest, both by men of science and by theologians, and it will give the ordinary reader a more perfect insight into the mysteries of creation, and the laws which govern mind and matter, than almost any work with which we are acquainted. To the believers in the authenticity of sacred history, this work will prove an invaluable companion, as it accounts in the most marvellously clear manner, for all the apparent contradictions in which the primitive narrative is involved. He asks no one to believe in the divine inspiration of the sacred writings who cannot reconcile them with established scientific facts. To use his own words, he says, "It must be a serious thing to claim divine authority for any writing whatever, except upon evidence sufficient to satisfy not a superstitious, but a reasonable, sober, and truth-loving mind." He shows that "the popular idea of instantaneous creation, is as destitute of authority from the Hebrew narrative, as it is of support, from any known fact."

The author gives Mr. Darwin every credit, for his valuable and highly important contributions to science, and unlike many other opponents, he treats him in a true Christian spirit. He recommends the student to carefully peruse, and closely study, his "Origin of Species," in order that all which can be urged in favor of his theory, may be perfectly understood, and expresses the greatest admiration, both for the ingenuity of his doctrine of natural selection, and the manner in which it has been handled. At the same time he gives proof and argument, exposing the falsity of its assumption. He does not merely combat the theory because it may be dangerous to religion, morality, and so forth, but also from a desire to accurately determine scientific facts, and the first principles relating to the formation of mind and matter Although he with acute perception quietly reviews Prof. Huxley's protoplasmitic theory, and its natural issue, he does so in no arrogant or dictatorial spirit, even although it is fatal to the existence of a God. He quietly shows the argument to be diametrically opposed to the well known laws which govern living organisms. To an impartial judge, Mungo Ponton's arguments must carry conviction wherever they are read, and it is to be hoped that at no distant day his valuable work on "The Beginning" may be published in this country, where it will unquestionably meet with as welcome a reception, and create as profound a sensation among our educated classes, as it has done among the learned men on the other side of the Atlantic. The work is an octavo volume of nearly 600 pages, and the illustrations are executed in the highest style of art.

The Prize Fight.

Special Correspondence.

ERIE, PA, May 10, 1871.

This unusually quiet village, noted principally for being the point where one of the Wisner murderers was arrested, and the quality of the fish which are sent to the oil region, presents a more lively appearance than at any time since the great railroad war of 1855. The town is full of curious characters, and one unsophisticated gentleman from the Northeast asked me, to-day, when the Methodist Conference was going to break up. I rebuked the young man, who a few moments later was locking for his oroide watch, which by some means had turned up missing.

The citizens, such of them as dare go out of doors, held an indignation meeting last evening to enquire whether means could not be taken to prevent any such assemblage of the Tammany aristocracy in future. As the case stands the house dogs are all confined in the kitchen, and night-watchmen set upon the cook stoves as soon as they cool off, and other articles of domestic use that are light enough to be moved.

The Mace party have their headquarters at the Reed House, where I am also stopping. I experienced some difficulty in getting a room, and would have been compelled to sleep under the barn of the editor of the Erie Dispatch had not an accident occurred to me later in the day, by which one of my eyes was nearly put out and the surrounding territory rendered of a Bismarck hue. The clerk of the Reed House, seeing me purchasing an oyster on the half-shell to cover the disabled optic, said: "Come up to the Reed House, where the rest of your crowd are," and I went. The Hotel is doing finely, only I noticed my plate was nailed down to the table and the knives and forks are chained to the chair legs. Some of our "boys" think this is a little peculiar, but Mr. Upson assured them it was the custom of the country, and they let the matter drop with the knives and forks when through dining. I met one of the principals to-day. I do not know which one, for it was down in a section of the city sewer, where he is at present stopping to avoid visitors. He "feels all right," he says, and I guess he is, for I felt of him, as well as the darkness would permit. To-night all the boats that have a license for transporting liquors to Her Majesty's dominions, leave with the spectators and followers of the pounders. As I have a $3 00 watch, presented by the Watchem Manufacturing Co., I shall swim over to the Canada side, and will report the fight, if my head is not used for a football before the row commences.

Travelers upon the Lake Shore line state that for miles in either direction the air is impregnated with Hostetter's bitters, and one old Kentuckian from Bourbon county, who was going home with the consumption, exclaimed as he sniffed the breeze this morning:

"Ah, I smell my native violets;
Are we almost there, mother,
Are we almost there?"

Yours, W. R.

John Hatfield, who died in Troy a few days ago, was the first maker of matches in this country. He cut them one by one with his jack-knife. The chemical composition necessary to insure combustion was prepared by him, the ingredients at that time being known in America only to himself. This was in 1836.

The Ventilation of Sewers and Drains.

Considering that we have no street sewerage in Titusville, and very imperfect house drains, it is a wonder that there is not more disease prevalent in our population of ten thousand. But from our immunity from epidemics hitherto, we should not neglect the most obvious precautions of good health and comfort, nor tolerate about our premises or our streets nuisances which are apt, under a summer sun, to breed and scatter the contagion of disease through families and neighborhoods. It is poor economy for a household to spare the outlay of twenty-five or fifty dollars in providing proper drainage from their kitchen, when by so doing they may incur the risk of miserable sickness as a penalty for their temerity and disregard of Nature's laws. There is positively no excuse to be offered for those in easy circumstances, who are indifferent to the purity of the air they breathe, waking and sleeping, or to the cleanliness of their surroundings. But often it is for want of sufficient knowledge of its importance and of hygienic laws and conditions, that people do not provide their homes with suitable drainage. And in this season of building and spring work a discussion of this subject is timely and important. The subject is attracting great attention just now, both in England and this country, and is discussed in all its respects by scientific journals and societies. The Builder, in reviewing the report of the Royal Sanitary Commission, says:

"The basis upon which a system of ventilation of drains must be effected, is the consideration that sewage consists of two fluids, the one liquid (the sewage proper) and the other gaseous, the foul air liberated by the decomposition of sewage; and as these two kinds of fluid travel in opposite directions—the one downward, by gravity, and the other upward, by reason of its having less specific gravity than the atmosphere (at least some of the component gases have, and those most injurious to health), it follows that, to construct a channel merely for the one part, without completing the work by providing an exit for the other, is to make an imperfect work; for as the formation of gases cannot be prevented in the sewers and drains, they will accumulate in the higher parts of the drains (and those are in and close about the houses), until their elastic force drives them through the traps and soil-pipes into the houses, unless a ventilating pipe be so connected with the drain as to carry off those injurious gases. A plan, which has succeeded, is to carry up from the head of every house-drain a pipe, of three or four inces diameter, to the top of and a few feet above the highest part of the roof of the house. The eruption of the confined gases will not then tend to force themselves through the traps, but will freely ascend the channel provided for them, and when they make their exit from the mouth of the pipe above the roof, they become sufficiently diluted with atmosphere air to become harmless to the dwellers below, for they have the tendency to still further ascend, until, indeed, they become practically annihilated."

It will be recollected that the fever caught by Prince Albert was owing to a defect in a drain-pipe near the window of his sleeping room. If the sewage passes rapidly through the sewers, there will be less foul gas, and it will be less injurious in quality. There is a general want of engineering skill in the construction of sewers and in the laying of drain-pipes. They do not discharge as rapidly as they should, and they are often not made of suitable materials. One of the chief causes of disease in large cities is the foul air passing off from the sewers. It appears that the ancients were cognisant of the necessity of the ventilation of sewers. The Temple of Belus, supposed in the days of Herodotus to be the Tower of Babel, and 225 feet high to-day, is ventilated by parallel perpendicular flues connecting with a subterranean passage leading to the river. In all the old cities there are regular sewers from four to six feet apart which constitute a perfect system of ventilation. The Pyramids have flues running up and down, connecting with the water; and the water connects through a subterranean passage with the Nile. In all these great works they ventilate their sewerage, carrying off the gases. The Arabs, where they do not have these, keep their mouths shut, which is the secret of health.

Wendell Phillips might find in these historical facts illustrations to humble modern conceit of our fancied superiority over the ancients in the practical affairs of every day life. Certainly our schools and churches are not so well ventilated as the heathen temples of old.

Proceedings of the School Board.

The School Bound met May 9th. Present—Messrs. Smith, Henderson, Carter, Minor, Fowler, Stettheimer. Absent—Mr. Hoenig. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. The following bills were ordered to be paid: Olmsted & Jewhurst, for supplies, $5 75; Dame, Smith & Co., for supplies, $4 84; Titusville Printing Association, $3 50; Pat Garry, $5.00. Communications of N. B. Barker and Samuel G. Love were read and ordered on file. A bill of Bloss, Bros. & Cogswell was referred to the Finance Committee. On motion, the Board adjourned till Monday at eight o'clock p. m.

JOSEPH STETTHEIMER, Sec.

SHERLY'S NEW YORK THEATRE.—Contrary to expectation, an unusually small audience was present last evening to witness the favorite sensational drama of "Mary Warner," by the Sherry Troupe. The characters were powerfully cast. J. K. Chester and Virginia Howard, as Geo. Warner and Mary Warner, were unusually effective in their rendition. They were well supported, and the whole piece gave the most entire satisfaction.

A BASE BALL CLUB was organized at Rouseville on Monday last and the following officers appointed: President, William Salvage; Secretary, James P. Keene; Captain, T. C. Keyes; Treasurer, Mike Hogan. The membership fee is one dollar, and the first meeting of the club for practice will take place on Steele farm flats.

—The new Exchange Hotel at Franklin will be opened about the 1st of June. Major Mills is superintending the completion of the work, and the furniture is ordered.

THE LINGARD PERFORMANCE.—One of the purest, most entertaining performances ever given in this city, was that of the Lingards last night. William Horace has lost none of his humor, and Alice Dunning none of her loveliness. The evening began with a comedy of Mr. Lingard's own arrangement, entitled, "Who's to have him," introducing Mrs. Lingard with a song. She was exceedingly brilliant in this role, and rendered a pleasing little song with the greatest vivacity. Mr. Lingard's transformation sketches for which he is so famous were the ne plus ultra, to use a hackneyed phrase, of the whole programme. His representation of Horace Greeley brought down the house. The closing comedy of "Naval Engagements," was as amusing a thing as we have for sometime witnessed. Mr. Lingard's impersonation of the Elder Admiral was exceedingly funny, and no fault could be found in any particular whatever. The troupe, we regret to say, are on their way to the Pacific coast, and will not give our citizens another exhibition of their merit for some time.—Erie Daily Republican, May 9.

CRUISING.

What are the days but islands,
So many little islands,
And sleep the sea of silence,
That flows about them all?
There, when the moon is risen,
The peaceful waters glisten;
But yonder plashing—listen,
It is the souls that fall.

The little boats are skimming,
The wind-led boats are skimming,
Each in its silver rimming,
Apart from fleet and shore.
There not an oar is dipping—
With just a cable's slipping
Glides out with a phantom rhipping
That wanders evermore.

Every day's an island,
A green or barren island,
A lowland or a highland,
That looks upon the sea,
There fruitful groves are crowning;
There barren cliffs are frowning,
And rocky channels drawing
The little boats that flee.

How many are the islands,
The teeming, talking islands,
That in the sea of silence,
The roving vessels find!
Their number no man knoweth;
Their way the current showeth;
The pale returnless flow'eth
As each is left behind.

The sailors long to tarry—
For fast they long to tarry—
When at some isle of fairy
They touch and go ashore.
With songs of wistful pleading
They follow fate, unheeding,
And with the tides receding
Are drifting as before.

But sometimes, in the sailing,
The blind and cold sea sailing,
They pass beyond the hailing
Of land upon the lee.
The lowlands and the highlands,
And all beyond the islands,
Behold the sea of silence—
Behold the green, white sea.

The ice crop is so large this year, and the competition between the companies is so great, that agents are going round to the dwelling houses in the upper and central portion of New York city to receive orders, offering to supply customers at the extraordinary rate of nothing per week for the first part of the season, in order to get their custom for the remaining portion of the year.

One by one the old Yale College customs pass away. That of presenting a class cup to the boy first born to a member of each class at the triennial meeting will be omitted this year, John Lewis, of Hartford, to whom the distinction belongs, having declined to receive the cup. The cup has been presented yearly for about twenty years, and the presentation and reception speeches afforded a very pleasant evening's entertainment.

Is on the ice question again this season, and succeeded in putting up

Seven Hundred Tons of Ice

Not figures, but ice, and intends not to be undersold. Spring ice will be sold from three-fourths to one cent per pound; Creek ice from forty to fifty cents per one hundred pounds. Parties wishing ice by the ton will be supplied at liberal rates. I will deliver ice now at any time that parties desire it. All persons commencing with me the first of the season will be carried through if there is any ice to be had this side of Buffalo. As this is supposed to be a free country, I have taken this method to inform the public that I have the ice. It is now for them to select the man to furnish them. This thing of drumming and harassing a man at every point and corner to take ice is an insult to a free man and an outrage to humanity. Office first door east of L. P. Scoville's grocery store, and west of the Catholic Church on Spring street.

Orders for ice left at H. A. Hill's boot and shoe store, opposite the American Hotel, will be promptly attended to, if written on the slate furnished there. mch10-tf
